

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A liquid heating device includes a heater having its front and rear end respectively connected with two output terminals of a control circuit. When the control circuit is started, the heater will immediately generate high temperature to let the liquid inside heated up fast to a proper temperature, or boiled or 5 converted into vapor, conforming to practicability.